

In The News - July 2021

A collection of noteworthy and topical articles we found helpful this month

EPL

- As claims alleging sexual misconduct and molestation increase, it's important to note that EPL insurance may provide only limited coverage.

Read More

E&O

- The architects and engineers professional liability market has avoided some of the hard market conditions seen in other lines. Here's a look at why – and what might be next.

Read More

Cyber

- Cyber insurance direct written premium increased 22% in 2020. As demand and risks increase, a new A.M. Best report shows that insurers need to reassess cyber risks.

Read More

- Ransomware attacks are creating a ripple effect that includes business interruption, premium hikes and new legislative compliance issues.

Read More

Healthcare

- The medical malpractice insurance market continues to harden, and COVID-related claims could make a bad situation worse.

Read More

D&O

- A rise in zombie companies – companies that may fail because they don't have enough cash flow to cover their debt – is causing insurers to charge higher premiums.

Read More

- SPAC lawsuits are becoming more common, and it could exacerbate the hardening D&O insurance market.

Read More

Property

- The debate over business interruption coverage for COVID continues as a New Hampshire judge rules that COVID creates a "distinct and demonstrable alteration" to property.

Read More

- With new pandemic risks, as well as riot, natural disaster and cyber risks, the U.S. property and casualty insurance market will be put to the test.

Read More

Casualty

- As progress continues to be made in the development of fully self-driving cars, questions about assigning liability take on urgency.

Read More

- Hard insurance market conditions are expected to continue in 2021, with property, D&O, cyber and umbrella lines seeing the biggest impact.

Read More